Realizing rights for women and girls

A union perspective

Women Power Unions

More than 100 union women are at the UNCSW59. In alliance with likeminded women's organisations, networks and coalitions we are making our voices heard so that governments can do more to live up to their commitments to implement the Beijing Platform for Action, especially with regards to:

- ♀ Expanding women's access to paid employment, decent work and social protection, and;
- ♀ Building a care economy in which paid and unpaid care is valued and shared.

We represent 70 million women workers from unions all over the world. By standing united we strengthen women's power and their ability to secure rights and protection at work.
